Using primary source material in the classroom is a unique way to enhance your social studies curriculum using authentic artifacts, documents, photographs, and manuscripts from institutions such as the Library of Congress, National Archives, Historical Collections... even the US Postal Service! Primary sources can include text, images, photographs, drawings, audio, statistics, and community resources. This workshop will be very interactive and "hands on". Participants will have the opportunity to explore primary source documents of all types directly related to the Massachusetts Frameworks - where to find them, how to use them, what works best at different grade levels, and how to directly correlate the material to what is being studied in the social studies classroom.

About the Presenter:

Evelyn J. Woldman has a Masters degree in Social Studies Education from Boston University and a C.A.G.S. in Teaching in Education with Technology from Lesley University.
