Supervision and Evaluation to Improve Teaching and Learning

Presenter: Kim Marshall

Course #: 10-413A

Date: Friday, March 5, 2010

Time: 8:30 AM – 3:30 PM

Register by: February 19, 2010

Audience: Building and central office administrators

This workshop will focus on how appropriate strategies for supervision and evaluation lead to improved teaching and learning in our schools. The main themes that will be discussed include:

- Why conventional supervision and evaluation aren't effective levers for improving teaching and learning
- How a four-part strategy can change that
- Mini-observations - a systematic way of getting into classrooms and giving teachers feedback
- Working with teacher teams on backwards-designing curriculum units
- Working with teacher teams on looking at interim assessment results and following up
- Using rubrics to do end-of-year teacher evaluations far more efficiently and effectively

About the Presenter: Kim Marshall was a teacher, central office administrator, and principal in the Boston Public Schools for 32 years. He now advises and coaches new principals (working with New Leaders for New Schools), teaches courses and workshops on instructional leadership, and publishes a weekly newsletter, the Marshall Memo, summarizing ideas and research from 44 publications (www.marshallmemo.com). Kim has written several books and numerous articles on teaching and school leadership. He is married and has two children, both of whom are high-school teachers.
